

McEWEN RANCH AND CATTLE COMPANY - CRANE, OREGON

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

With roots in the Miller-Lux cattle empire of the 19th century, this expansive cattle and hay operation encompasses 52,445± deeded acres plus extensive Bureau of Land Management (BLM) grazing allotments in the Malheur River basin of eastern Oregon near the small ranching community of Crane, an hour southeast of Burns. With an emphasis on premium beef production, the ranch currently runs 1,225± breeding cows plus bulls with capacity for 1,525± cows and produces excess hay on 1,500± acres, including 1,125± acres under 9

Valley and Zimmatic center pivots. Abundant water features and improvements include reservoirs, year-round creeks and streams, irrigation and stock-water wells, springs, ponds, playas, and range developments. The ranch is modestly but practically improved with employee housing, equipment storage, barns, shop buildings, and cattle facilities, including a 750-head permitted backgrounding lot. The ranch is home to an array of western wildlife, and the owner is eligible to receive up to eight landowner preference tags to hunt elk and deer on the ranch. There are also strong populations of chukar and California quail, and the reservoirs offer excellent largemouth bass fishing. Hall and Hall's management division has provided professional oversight of the ranch since 2008 and is available to work on behalf of a new owner to manage the ranch under a long-term arrangement or as part of a transition strategy. Situated in the heart of Oregon's high desert, McEwen Ranch and Cattle Company is a profitable legacy ranch that represents one of the largest deeded properties available in the West today.
